UN agencies, global health groups and Chile back India on intellectual property waiver of Covid-19 therapies

A brief note on the issue

Chile became the first country globally perhaps to pledge support, having passed a resolution internally backing the proposal, while UN agencies including UNAIDS and UNITAID have rallied around it.

The organisations support the proposal to waive intellectual property rules on patents and trade secrets for Covid-19 technology such as medicines, vaccines, masks and ventilators, for equitable and unrestricted access of these products globally.
